Why you should attend

If you spend time “telling” a witness what they should do under oath, that’s an effective strategy about 30% of the time. So, how do you get case-winning testimony the other 70%? If you have a witness who isn’t likable or believable – how do you turn them around? How can you actually change counterproductive behaviors? How do you keep a witness from imploding or exploding during testimony at deposition or trial? Scientists, psychologists, master teachers and great interviewers have answers. This CLE shows you how their best practices can work for you. See how to make best use of your time for the biggest ROI. Plus tips and tools you didn’t learn in law school that you can apply in your next case.
