These are all good points ▮▮▮ and to be honest I don't have good answers for all of these but I am also sure we can knit this together to have a compelling story. I look forward to spend time next week and coming months to discuss these in great details

Just PM chums.

How can we find out the relative weights of the following factors in the decision to opt-in?
- location burns my battery
- misconception about google selling my location data
- understanding the smörgåsbord of consents
- understanding the features that are enabled/improved by location history
- ... things I haven't thought of.

Maybe we've already done this :)

I wonder if we should spend more effort fixing misconceptions (and making sure they're not accurate!) about must-haves rather than raising awareness of delighters? I wouldn't buy a flying car if it didn't have seatbelts...
